Brief Backgrounder

Adam Strominger is a Planned Giving Officer at Food for the Poor, the largest International relief charitable organization in the United States. Over the years Adam has collaborated with many of the industry's thought leaders, leading associations, financial service companies, and advisory firms. Adam has superior analytical and organizational skills honed with his nonprofit and business development background in media, advertising, publishing, technology and fundraising with extensive knowledge of the estate, charitable, and financial planning market and resources. Adam brings with him many long term strategic alliances with leading providers of news, data, technology and marketing/distribution networks with experience at growing client relationships and creating long-term value driven partnerships.

His previous employment experiences include:

- Business development director for The Planned Giving Design Center, a major content provider of charitable gift planning.
- Business development director for Trust and Estates magazine, putting together some of the largest attended digital events in the magazine's history.
- Various research and publishing roles at Reed Elsevier, A.C. Nielsen, Turner Broadcasting Network and with legendary producer Steve J Cannell, the bestselling novelist and Emmy-winning TV producer of hits like "The Rockford Files" and "21 Jump Street."

Adam received his bachelor's degree in communications from State University of New York at New Paltz.

Adam lives in South Florida with his wife and three children. He spends his spare time fishing, kayaking, and hiking.
